Technical assistance for damage resolving

Eole Constructing provides technical expertise to assist operating companies or investors that are facing construction issues.

We provide advice and manage all types of defaults, in order for customers to best defend their interests and to make sure that all actions and works required are carried out.

We are specialised in the most important defaults concerning foundations and junctions between foundations and steel towers, the damages coming from water sepages inside windturbines and grid stations, rust issues on components, etc.

Eole Constructing proposes tailor-made assignments to respond to customer's needs, depending of the type of default, and the context of the project.
